'Birthday attack' toll high in Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — The Viet Cong rocket attack on a sleeping Saigon Sunday to mark Ho Chi Minh's 78th birthday killed 11 South Vietnamese and wounded 51, all but seven of them civilians, U.S. officials reported. Twenty rounds of 100-pound missiles set 150 homes afire in the city.

The officials said the victims included women and children. The nonvillain victims were three policemen killed and four wounded.

One U.S. soldier was slightly wounded. The attack began at 1 a.m. in a salute to the North Vietnamese president, the world's oldest Communist leader, and lasted 45 minutes. It filled the sky over Saigon with great clouds of smoke and flames. Then shortly after 8 a.m. three more rounds burst in downtown areas.

Shells hit near the U.S. Embassy and Independence Palace, the seat of South Vietnam's government, but neither building was damaged. An entire block of homes and shops in the city went up in flames after rocket hits, however.

The attack had been expected. Military headquarters reported intelligence information indicated the Viet Cong had planned another general assault on Saigon and other centers in observance of Ho's birthday. But widespread attacks did not come.

South Vietnamese military headquarters reported only two other significant shellings outside Saigon. One was against a hamlet north of the capital and the other on a population center in the Mekong Delta.

These attacks killed one government soldier and wounded 20 civilians, officials said.

At Cu Chi, troops of the U.S. 25th Infantry Division reported giving Ho "an unexpected birthday present" Saturday night.

"We gave him some of his own medicine," said a division spokesman. "The division artillery fired captured 122mm rockets back into Viet Cong positions about seven miles north of Cu Chi."

Cu Chi is 15 miles northwest of Saigon.

In other war developments, the U.S. Command reported the loss of two more American warplanes in combat, a stepup of action in the northern sector and a Viet Cong attempt to sink a British tanker heading into Saigon.

RFK forces attack HHH peace speech

WASHINGTON (AP) — The forces of New York Sen. Robert F. Kennedy fired a new broadside Sunday at Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey for "using a political forum to report" on sensitive negotiations with an Asian Communist nation.

The new attack followed a Saturday night speech in which Humphrey said there were indications the crew of the captured intelligence ship Pueblo, and possibly the vessel, may be released by North Korea.

In the same speech, Humphrey also told the American Association of Editorial Cartoonists that the "best way" to get the Pueblo and its crew back would be to put the issue on the Paris bargaining table between U.S. and North Vietnam negotiators.

The place is full of them," said Maj. Thomas Berren, an Army operations officer from Washington, D.C.

planes. North Vietnam claimed its forces shot down three Saturday and another Sunday.

In the two newly reported losses, a pilot was killed and two other crewmen were reported missing. Three crewmen were killed, two are missing and four others were wounded in the previous downings.

One of the two latest losses was a $6 million Navy RA5C Vigilante reconnaissance jet that carries a $1 million camera to photograph North Vietnamese installations.

U.S. headquarters said the Vigilante was from the aircraft carrier Kitty Hawk and was downed by "unknown causes" Saturday northwest of the North Vietnamese coastal city of Vinh, which came under heavy attack. Vinh is 145 miles north of the demilitarized zone and 25 miles below the 19th parallel off-limits line set by President Johnson in his bombing limitation order March 31.

The DMZ, the six-mile wide buffer zone along the 49-mile North-South border, is a key issue in the talks in Paris between U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman and Hanoi's Xuan Thuy. As a jumping off point for broader peace talks, Harriman wants the North Vietnamese to agree to a restoration of the DMZ as a nonmilitary area as a means of halting infiltration of Hanoi forces into the South.

But Thuy has countered with a demand the allies halt attacks across the DMZ and withdraw forces from the entire area. He refuses even to acknowledge North Vietnamese soldiers are there, or anywhere else in South Vietnam.

The place is full of them," said Maj. Thomas Berren, an Army operations officer from Washington, D.C.

Peace talks patience contest

PARIS (AP) — Another round of sparring between the Americans and North Vietnamese begins this week in Paris, and the key question is: Whose patience will crack first?

The North Vietnamese appear to be dug in for a long siege, as if convinced that in a contest of patience they have the Americans at a disadvantage.

The two sides at this preliminary Vietnam peace conference have met three times—Monday, Wednesday and Saturday—on substantive matters. They have talked for a total of about 10 hours. They have accomplished practically nothing at all.

North Vietnam's attitude indicates a confidence in inexhaustible patience. Its delegation's stand, which it presents as bedrock, is that before there can be any progress at all the United States must stop all bombing and other acts of war against North Vietnam.

It appears to be eyeing events in South Vietnam, as if waiting to see what happens there. From what delegation members have said, Hanoi appears to think that eventually the government of South Vietnam will collapse and that the Americans then will have to make concessions.

As the North Vietnamese present the question, it sounds simple: The Americans are bombing North Vietnam. North Vietnam is not bombing the United States. All the Americans have to do, if they want negotiations to start, is to end the bombing.

The Americans want some reciprocal gesture from Hanoi toward scaling down the war. But, the North Vietnamese say, how can there be reciprocity on such a question? The North Vietnamese are not bombing the United States, and thus cannot reciprocate on that score.

On the other hand, the Americans appear determined not to lose their cool. They appear ready to match patience with patience, even though patience is a commodity of which Orientals traditionally have a large supply.

The Americans seem to want to avoid giving the impression that they match inactivity with inactivity. Though the words used by the chief U.S. negotiator, 76-year-old W. Averell Harriman, are often tough, he delivers them in a calm, measured way which makes even harsh accusations sound relatively polite.

Russia plans four-planet space tour

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Russia apparently plans to launch a spacecraft on a "grand tour" of four planets in 1978 to gather scientific information. Many American scientists have urged that the United States prepare a similar probe to take advantage of a planetary position opportunity that occurs only once every 175 years.

The current issue of Soviet Life magazine has an article titled "A Probe to Neptune?" which details how a payload can use the gravitational fields of Jupiter, Saturn and Uranus to accelerate itself to Neptune, some three billion miles away.

The article said the rocket must be launched "exactly on Oct. 7, 1978. No other day will serve for the trajectory of the probe to be near enough the three planets to be accelerated by their gravitational forces" to reach the most distant of the four, Neptune.

"Soviet Life," an English-language monthly distributed in this country under reciprocal agreement with the U.S., said many technical problems must be solved.

Strikes paralyze nation

PARIS (AP) — Strike-bound France appeared headed Sunday for total paralysis but the revolutionary fervor of university students, which sparked the wave of social unrest, seemed to be easing.

President Charles de Gaulle, who cut short a visit to Romania Saturday, met during the day with his top ministers in charge of the security of the nation to prepare strategy for maintaining public order.

Information Minister Georges Gorse said the president wound up the meetings by saying: "Reforme oui, chie-en-lit, non." Chie-en-lit may be translated as bed-fouling, masquerade or carnival.

Former Premier Pierre Mendes-France, a leading personality of the opposition called for an end of the 19-year De Gaulle regime.

Mendes-France has been mentioned as a possible successor to Premier Georges Pompidou, who faces a censure vote in the National Assembly Wednesday, but the statement seemed to mean an open break with De Gaulle. Mendes-France was premier for seven months in 1954, during which Indochina was lost to France.

The country's three big union federations showed signs of trying to avoid an open break with De Gaulle. As yet none have issued a call for a general strike, seemingly content to let the present grassroots movement spread.

So far the demands of the federations on behalf of the workers have been relatively modest: higher wages with no exact percentage specified and a slight lowering of the retirement age.

The students were being pulled by two conflicting forces, a desire to take the year-end examinations and wanting drastic reform of the "bourgeois social system."

A boycott of the examinations has been the central issue pressed by the most radical of the student groups as a symbol of their zeal for reform. Sharp divisions on the issue have arisen among some student organizations.

In Marseille, the dean of the medical college announced students have agreed to evacuate the building and start exams today. This was the first breach in the ranks of students in more than two weeks of strife with university authorities and the government.

But at the Sorbonne in Paris, students remained in firm control and there was no sign of any flagging in their nonstop meetings for discussion of just about every imaginable subject.

The French capital on this sunny Sunday was outwardly calm, with the usual crowd of sightseers strolling along the Champs Elysees or the boulevards.

Maryland guard alerted to ease racial tension

SALISBURY, Md. (AP) — The Maryland National Guard was ordered into active service Sunday by Gov. Spiro T. Agnew, making additional troops available in the event of a recurrence of racial violence.

Several hundred state troopers quelled a disturbance by about 1,000 Negroes Saturday night after a white policeman shot and killed a Negro burglar suspect.

Agnew said although there was no activity in Salisbury when he issued his order at 5 p.m. Sunday, he felt the security of the area required their availability and presence to control any possible disturbance.

The order gives Maj. Gen. George M. Gelston, the state adjutant general, the authority to deploy as many Guardsmen as he feels are necessary. Soon after the order was issued, Guardsmen were ordered to report to armories in nearby towns of Centerville, Chester-town and Denton.

Agnew alerted 200 National Guard troops Saturday night and they spent the night in the Salisbury Armory but were not put on duty. On Sunday, the governor proclaimed a state of emergency for the town of about 18,000.

Salisbury's business district was sealed off Sunday and Agnew announced that a curfew would be in effect from 7 p.m. Sunday until 7 a.m. Monday in Salisbury and five miles beyond the city limits.

State's Attorney Alfred T. Truitt Jr. announced Sunday that detective Jerry C. Mason, a member of the police force for six years, was charged with manslaughter. The shooting victim was identified as Daniel Kenneth Henry, a 22-year-old deaf mute.

Mason was taken before Magistrate William H. Bull, Truitt said, and $1,500 bond was posted. The state's attorney said Mason is entitled to a preliminary hearing.

Truitt said the action was common practice and it is now up to the courts to resolve the case. Mason is entitled to a preliminary hearing, Truitt said, although he did not know whether the officer would request it.

State Police Supt. Robert J. Lally and Negro leaders met Sunday to consider allowing about 100 Negroes, who gathered at Lake and Main Streets,

About 300 Negroes gathered outside police headquarters Saturday to protest the shooting of a 22-year-old deaf mute. The demonstration was broken up.

At 7:30 p.m., however, trouble started along Main Street—part of U.S. 50—with windows shattered by rocks and bottles, and some minor looting.

'Get Smart' wins Emmy

NEW YORK (AP) — Don Adams of the "Get Smart" show and Lucille Ball won Emmy Awards as best actor and best actress in a comedy series Sunday night and "Get Smart" was named the best comedy show.

Adams was named for his portrayal of the bumbling secret agent Maxwell Smart on the National Broadcasting Co. series. Miss Ball was honored for "The Lucy Show" on the Columbia Broadcasting System.

The award for the series was presented to Burt Rodella, producer of the show.

The 20th annual Emmy award ceremonies, nationally televised by NBC, were held in New York and Hollywood.

The late Marion Lorne, who died May 9 at the age of 81, was named best supporting actress in a comedy for her portrayal in ABC's "Bewitched" series. Elizabeth Montgomery, star of the show, in accepting the award said, "I wish, and I'm sure you all do, that she were here."

Pope makes appeal

ROME (AP) — Italy's first national parliamentary elections in five years got under way Sunday with church-state relations and legalization of divorce among major issues.

Pope Paul VI urged voters to uphold the country's "social, moral and religious values."

The Pope's appeal, five hours after voting began, was considered a low-keyed plea for support of the dominant Christian Democratic party, the only major Italian party that backs the Roman Catholic Church in opposing legalized divorce.

A large turnout of Italy's 35.5 million voters was expected for the two days of balloting that began at 7 a.m. Sunday and will end at 2:30 p.m. Monday. Definitive results are not expected until Tuesday morning.

Despite recent student and labor disturbances in Italy, no disorders were reported 12 hours after the polls opened.

Pope Paul's statement, made during his regular Sunday noon blessing of a crowd in St. Peter's Square, broke the pontiff's public silence on the two-month political campaign.

The election is the first national test at the polls for the center-left coalition—an alliance of the Christian Democrats, the Socialists and the small Republican party—formed after the last election.

The Communist party, largest in the west, seeks to hold its quarter of the electorate, a percentage that gave it a record 7.7 million votes in 1963 and strengthened its position as Italy's second biggest party.

At stake were 630 seats in the Chamber of Deputies, the lower house, and 315 in the Senate.

If the balance of forces remains essentially the same, President Giuseppe Saragat is expected to tap Premier Aldo Moro to put together another center-left cabinet.

Rights officials seek police probe

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The Tennessee Advisory Committee to the U.S. Civil Rights Commission has called for a Justice Department probe of alleged police brutality during Memphis' recent racial disorder.

The committee concluded Saturday after a two-day hearing that "a situation exists in the city of Memphis which requires a full investigation by appropriate federal, state and local authorities."

The statement was issued by acting chairman Henry O. Forgy Jr. of Jackson after nearly 12 hours of closed hearings into charges of police misconduct during the Memphis garbage strike and disorders following the assassination here last month of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

"If only a small number of the allegations are substantiated by further investigations, a serious problem exists with respect to law enforcement agencies," the committee said.

The statement added that the committee "will recommend to the Commission on Civil Rights that the transcript of our meetings and the statements in our possession be forwarded to the Department of Justice with a request that they conduct a thorough investigation of all allegations."

"The committee is convinced that, whatever the truth of the allegations, there is very great distrust of and dislike for the Memphis police department among a substantial segment of Memphis' Negro citizens."

The statement concluded that a belief in police brutality is prevalent among the Negro community.

"That belief is held by small

First Lady attends N.C. celebration

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson will be in Charlotte Monday to celebrate the city's 200th birthday and the 193rd anniversary of an event some say never happened—the signing of the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence.

While the First Lady helps Charlotte mark its bicentennial, a mock trial of the disputed document will be under way across town at the University of North Carolina.

Local historians say Mecklenburg patriots signed a declaration of independence from England more than a year before the declaration of July 4, 1776.

But Dr. Edward Perzel, a university specialist in colonial history, questions the validity of the much glorified Mecklenburg declaration.

Dr. Perzel says it can't be proved the declaration did exist and it can't be proved it didn't. "But to put the emphasis on the 'did exist' approach is wrong," he says.

On the other hand, Perzel says there is no doubt the Mecklenburg Resolves of May 31, 1775 existed. The resolves declared "conditional independence" from Great Britain and were phrased in "more legalistic and cautious" terms, Perzel says.

Firemen's duty a rewarding habit

By FRED WALTER

POCONO RECORD REPORTER
SAYLORSBURG — An exciting and curious way of growing up with a community, is to play an active part in it and being a part of its changing scene is to be a life long member of its voluntary fire company.

These voluntary organizations are the last to be a part of competitive enterprises. In their purpose, none can claim to be unique over another. Each unit performs its objective — the protection of life and property against fire. Every voluntary fire fighting unit cooperates with the other for mutual assistance in the control of fire.

When you single out one of these units, you are actually giving credit to all of them.

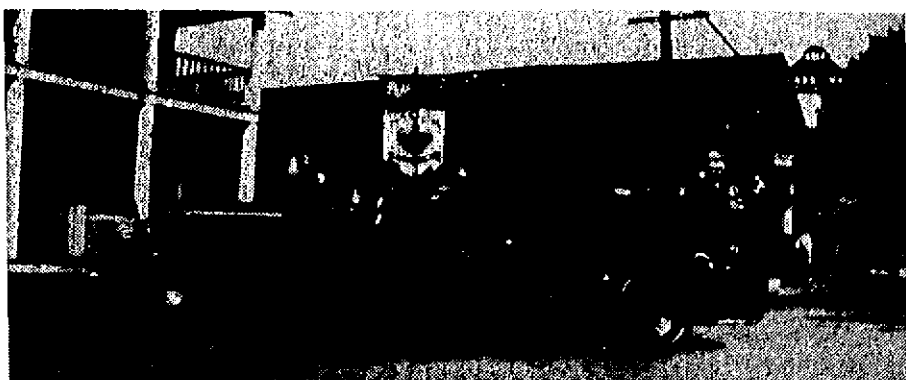

63 years service
And so, for 63 years, the Blue Ridge Hook and Ladder Company of Saylorsburg has served its people of Ross and Hamilton Townships and other communities.

It was incorporated under the laws of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania on January 11, 1905.

It was organized then with a list of 20 subscribers on the original charter who answered the fire calls with a portable pump on a hand cart.

Oldest member
One of these charter members still living is James E. Serfass, now 87 years old. Mr. Serfass was unable to relate any of his earlier experiences since he recently suffered a stroke.

Names of these first firemen whose families still support the company include: J. L. Haney; S. D. Newhart, A. E. Miller, H. B. Schenk, Joseph L. Gum, E. G. Dorshimer, Daniel Gower, Charles Mackes, M. Lessig, Philip Remel, Ed J. Mackes, Morris A. Altemose, Eugene

After the hand-cart pump, Blue Ridge Hook and Ladder Co., of Saylorsburg used this 350 GPM pumper in the 1930's and has progressed to its modern radio controlled equipment.

Faulstick, Alvin Serfass, Tilden Haney, John E. Raschley, Peter C. VanBuskirk, Charles E. Saylor and C. E. Shapp.

The present building, housing all the equipment was dedicated in 1946. Before this the equipment had to be stored in local garages.

After the hand-cart days came the first 350 GPM pumper with limited necessary accessories which was used in the 1930s and early '40s. After World War II there was a demand for additional fire-fighting equipment; Hook and Ladder then included a 750 GPM class A pumper with accessories (GMC); a half ton Ford pickup with cabin for utility truck and one Hale type FZZ portable pump.

Today, all buildings and equipment have been paid for which includes a large two-story brick firehall, six mobile units (two attack pumpers, one 1,200 gallon water tanker; utility truck; all-wheel drive truck specially equipped for woods and grass fires and one jeep equipped with tank and pump).

The company maintains an active membership of 35 firemen. A maximum of 50 is allowed without limits on the number of contributing members. Minimum age for members is 18 but a fireman, must be 21 years old to be permitted to operate the vehicles unless ordered to do so by the commanding officer.

George Kitchen, fire chief of the Hook and Ladder for the past 18 years, seems to accept this civil responsibility with added moderation to a very vital organization of dedicated men.

The officers of the company are: president, James Eckley; vice president, Robert Heil; secretary, William Heil; treasurer, Frank Schick (since 1946, and a member of the unit for 42 years); assistant chief, Dale Greenmoyer; mechanic, Clayton Snyder.

Also, five trustees: Ronald Herman, John Frailey, Willard Shoemaker, Claude Bond and John Toth.

Disaster occurred
Blue Ridge Hook and Ladder Co., and many other like units have their moment of disaster, but their history is not without the occasional humor.

The original fire house burned down many years ago, recalled Kitchen, but he also remembers when a fire call came during the night and a fireman was only too anxious to leave his home to finish dressing at the fire house.

Along with their Ladies Auxiliary, the firemen support their community through the year with many special services and fun-time events, especially the week long Carnival during the July 4 celebration.

would discuss a site and make recommendations for its use for land learning. The site selected for the discussion and evaluation may be the location for a new school building or where remodeling is contemplated. Evaluation would take place at the site.

Dr. Matthew J. Brennan, Director of the Pinchot Institute, and Clifford Emanuelson, Associate Director, served as discussion leaders during the conference.

They pledged help to teachers and school administrators in relation to the promotion of the educational use of diverse environments.

The committee, the continuation of which will be the responsibility of the Pinchot Institute, urged additions to State Codes in regard to school construction, calling for a microclimatic study at school sites and the mandatory establishment of an outdoor laboratory.

Architects aid
The willing endorsement of the architects attending the conference led to a resolution calling for a charrette in the near future in which an architectural firm, a client and the members of the committee

Area CC tests are scheduled

CHIROPRACTIC FOR NEURITIS

By Dr. Thomas F. Snyder

There seem to be four main areas of Neuritis in the body: the arm, leg, neck and ribs.

Neuritis refers to the nerve inflammation in the area; and most frequently the seeds of distress in Neuritis, when the irritated nerve is traced, come from the spinal column, and in the overwhelming majority of cases, is due to displaced vertebrae that are irritating those nerves.

Go to your doctor of Chiropractic for Neuritis, he is the specialist in locating spinal displacement to remove the nerve pressure.

(One of a series of articles published in the public interest to explain and illustrate the scientific practice of Chiropractic, written by Dr. Thomas F. Snyder, Chiropractor, Brodheadsville, Pa.,

School designs must change to enhance student learning

MILFORD — A number of recommendations for continuation of efforts to make school grounds "lands for learning" were made at the conclusion of a three-day conference on school sites at the Pinchot Institute on Thursday.

The conferees are now the Advisory Council on School Sites and another meeting in the Spring of 1969 is being planned, at which time the 23 leading educators, architects and conservationists concerned may evaluate progress. During their meetings at the former home of Gifford Pinchot, the group heard lectures by Dr. Richard Bower of Davis, MacConnell, Ralston, Inc.; Jerry Fair, American Institute of Architects; Dr. John Brainerd of Springfield College; Dr. William Stapp and Dr. Russell Wilson, both of the University of Michigan.

Communications need
The committee recommended extensive use of various communication media embracing the publication of a newsletter and the issuance of a report and summation of the conference just completed.

The committee called for schools by precept and example, to make a responsive effort to achieve the highest quality of environmental atmospheres. They called for the elimination of distinction between educational sites which places difficulties in the path of the teacher attempting field trips and outdoor laboratory sessions.

Bids sought for Pike park changes

HARRISBURG — Bids for various improvements at Promised Land State Park in Greene Township will be opened June 19 by the General State Authority.

Rep. J. Russell Eshback said the bids will be for general park improvements and construction, in addition to camping area changes.

Eshback said construction of the two projects is part of the development of a camping area around the Lower Lake. The camping area is located in the western section of the park, just west of Route 309.

Park improvements will involve expansion of the water supply system and sewage disposal system, construction of two washhouses, a garage, parking area and bituminous roads.

A small boat launching and mooring site is also planned.

PEN ARGYL — The J. B. Lahr Scholarship Fund at Pen Argyl Area School District has reached $2,669 to date.

one campaign would be held and upon receipt of all contributions the fund will be closed and no further donations solicited.

The drive will continue until everyone interested will have had an opportunity to contribute. Individuals who have booklets are asked to return them immediately to respective class captains.

It was decided to present an award of $200 to a student of the Class of 1968 who will be selected by the principal and faculty committee. The amount of subsequent awards will be determined at a later date after the drive has closed.

ESSC preparing for possibilities

East Stroudsburg State College's decision to look into the future could well set an example for institutions of learning many times its size. It's an example several colleges wish they had followed many months ago.

The Board of Trustees, during a meeting last week, took steps to guard against possible student unrest, the type of which has become a common occurrence on campuses across the United States.

Maxwell Cohen, Stroudsburg attorney and a trustee, warned that ESSC shouldn't get caught in a "vacuum." He advocated realistic cooperation between students and administration.

It was the thinking of the board that action was necessary before the trouble and we agree entirely. The schools that were truly hurt in recent student uprising were those that delayed in making plans or had no plans at all.

The schools that had an advanced operation mapped were able to withstand the demonstration and to keep property damage and classroom hours lost at a minimum.

Dr. Frank D. Sills, incoming president, was asked to prepare a position paper on administration policy in the event of student unrest on campus. Sills is now in the process of preparing such a document.

The trustees are to be complimented on their forward looking action. After all, it has been minority groups that have put entire institutions of learning out of operation. As an example, a group of 200 agitated students closed Cheyney State College, which has an enrollment of 1,600.

There is no telling when the spark of student unrest will flare into a bonfire.

It is then proper to be ready to extinguish the flames as quickly and painlessly as possible. The policy adopted must also do away with all smoldering.

Lesson in faith

We all were exposed to a lesson in faith and dedication last Thursday. In fact, you might say we were exposed to at least the report of a miracle in West Virginia.

The miracle and lesson in faith and dedication were never more clearly shown than at Hominy Falls, W. Va., where six of 10 miners presumed dead were rescued.

There was no hope of any of the 10 miners being found alive since the previous Saturday, when 15 companions were rescued from another flooded section of the same mine.

No hope for a successful effort was ever expressed, but the rescue teams never quit. They worked as if every second was an important factor in finding the miners safe and sound.

The rescue, which was made successful only because the trapped miners had faith in the rescue teams and those working from the outside in had faith that the trapped group would be alive, was unbelievable.

The rescue was made after 10 days of entombment and tireless work. In all, the rescued miners had spent 233 hours far underground, the last 144 without any food.

It was one of those million-to-one shots that for some unexplainable reason was successful, when it was actually impossible.

The moral of the story is "faith"—faith in yourself and your fellow man.

Congressional quiz

Sea-level canal

The House April 30 by voice vote passed a bill (HR 15190) to provide an additional year for a study to determine a site for a new sea-level canal between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans. The bill currently is pending in the Senate. The quiz tests your knowledge of the needs for and pressures to build a new canal.

1. One of the reasons sites for a new canal are being studied is that there has been discontent for several years over the original Panama Canal treaty, evidenced in 1964 by: (a) the closing of the canal for two months; (b) riots which left 25 dead; (c) severing of diplomatic relations with Panama.

2. The 1903 Hay-Bunau-Varilla treaty concerning the Panama Canal one: (a) gave the United States control of the Panama Canal and the Panama Canal Zone; (b) provided for control of the canal to be shared equally by the United States and Panama; (c) set up a council of representatives from Mexico, Panama and the United States to regulate the canal.

3. The actual governor of the Panama Canal Zone is: (a) an American who is both governor of the Zone and president of the U.S.-owned Panama Canal; (b) a Panamanian appointed by the U.S. Government; (c) a "man without a country" appointed by a three-nation council.

4. Advantages of a sea-level canal over the present Panama Canal include: (a) greater capacity for inter-oceanic travel; (b) avoidance of the militarily vulnerable aspects of an intricate lock system; (c) ease of building.

5. Pressure has developed to build a new canal soon because: (a) the Panama Canal is completely obsolete; (b) while the Panama Canal will be adequate for several more years to build; (c) the lock structures of the Panama Canal are beginning to deteriorate.

Answers: 1. (b); 2. (a); 3. (a); 4. (a) & (b); 5. (b).

Jarring moment of life

Allen W. Dulles, distinguished former director of the Central Intelligence Agency, recalled recently—after speaking at the Dutch Treat club about his Harper and Row book on factual and fictional spies—that one of the more jarring moments of his life was his meeting with Nikita Khrushchev.

It goes without saying that the central reason for the Central Intelligence Agency was, and is, the Soviet Union.

Khrushchev was in Washington in 1959 as the guest of President Eisenhower. The Spirit of Camp David was thick enough to cut. At a reception for Khrushchev which Dulles attended, Vice President Nixon asked the CIA chief if he had had an opportunity to chat with the guest of honor.

"Only to say hello in the reception line," Dulles said. Nixon promptly took a firm hold on his arm and led him through the crowd that had gathered around Khrushchev. He introduced Dulles specifically as the chief of our super-secret intelligence agents. It was as if he was getting even with Khrushchev for all the biting things the Russian had said to him during the famed Kitchen Debate in Moscow, the year before.

"Dulles?" Khrushchev asked through his interpreter, momentarily puzzled. Then his face lit up like the face in a full moon.

"Of course I know you," he boomed. "I read all of your reports!"

"That would shake a fellow," I said to Dulles the other day. "What did you say to that?"

He puffed his venerable corn-cob pipe a moment. Then spoke:

"I said to him, 'I hope you come by them honorably.'"

(Khrushchev burst out laughing, told Dulles that in his opinion most of the United States and Soviet Union spies were double agents, and mockingly suggested that they fire all of them and simply exchange secrets back and forth. "It would save a lot of money," Khrushchev said.)

(Sometimes I miss that bum.)

Craig Wood was one of the great men of our time in sports. He could hit a golf ball longer and straighter than anybody of his era. He was the handsomest guy in the game, and the most courtly and decent.

He never rapped an opponent, never beefed about his bad luck. He won the Masters and the Open. But he lost a lot of big ones in a way that would have soured the prophet Job.

In 1935, for example, he was in the clubhouse at Augusta, celebrating winning the Masters, when Gene Sarazen sank a 220-yard wood—shot for a double eagle to tie him—and Gene went on to beat him the next day in the playoff.

Odd political parties

WASHINGTON — The Encyclopedia Americana has sent us some fascinating information about defunct, off-beat political parties. For instance, there was the Know-Nothing Party, a briefly successful force in the 1850s. It got its name because members, when asked about its secret rituals, replied, "I know nothing."

And then there were the Blue-Light Federalists, who were so opposed to the War of 1812 they signaled the British with blue lights whenever the American naval force, under Stephen Decatur, tried to escape from the blockaded port of New London, Conn. (They sound like some Viet Cong lovers we have around today.)

Another confused group was the Anti-Masons. The organization was formed when a man in Batavia, N.Y., wrote a book purportedly disclosing the secrets on the Masonic Order and promptly disappeared. The Anti-Masons blamed the Masons for this, but, oddly enough, the Anti-Masons' first nominee for president was a Mason — William Wirt, of Maryland.

For those of you who like items with hard facts and figures, we have this astounding information on file:

The 1939 dollar is now worth 42 cents. Economists project that in five years, it will be worth 32 cents and by 1980 it will be worth only a quarter.

The war in Vietnam costs a trifling $2.5 billion per month.

The oldest Peace Corps volunteer is Clarence Pickard, 78, of Iowa. His wife, Mildred, also in the Peace Corps, is 73. They are serving in India, where they teach farming methods.

Retiring Rep. Charles A. Halleck (R., Ind.), 67, made this somewhat bitter observation while speaking for the first time at the National Press Club:

"It took me 34 years in Congress to be invited to the National Press Club and I had to announce my retirement to make it." In an effort to compliment retired Rep. Howard Smith (D., Va.), Halleck said, "Judge Smith is one guy I would rob a bank with." (Well, that's confidence, of sorts.)

Recently a non-Federal group called "The Citizens Board of Inquiry Into Hunger and Malnutrition in the United States" issued a report spotlighting 256 counties where it said hunger exists and where the Agriculture Department is not distributing free food properly.

Striking back, Rep. W. R. Poage (D., Texas), chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, wrote to the health officers in all 256 counties. So far, 77 of them have answered and not one knew of a case of starvation in his area. In answer to 14 Congressmen who want to form a committee to study hunger in the United States, Poage said that first they will have to locate it before they can study it.

The next time one of President Johnson's friends calls with a problem, he may invite them to the White House to "kick it around." The Washington Whips recently presented him with a soccer ball, along with a season pass.

Do you realize that if Bobby Kennedy is elected president, the Secret Service may have to triple its size? How else is it going to provide protection for the president, the first lady and all of their children?

A University of Pennsylvania researcher reports that schizophrenic patients who were given diets without cereals recovered twice as fast as schizophrenics who ate cereals.

Gad. That information is enough to give the makers of breakfast food throbbing headaches. Or, even, split personalities.

A reader said the currently popular theory that it is wrong to shoot fleeing looters — on the grounds that it forces a policeman to become judge, jury and executioner — is wonderful. "Now," he said, "all I have to do is convince the Brinks guards that they should be like policemen and I can drop by and help myself to a few bags of money."

Stories Behind Words

By William Penfield

Bridgehead

The word "bridgehead," meaning a foothold, comes from military parlance.

Bridges have always been important in warfare, especially to an invading force, because troops and supplies can be moved across rivers easily and quickly, thereby hastening the advance. Retreating armies, knowing this, often blow up bridges so as to impede the enemy's progress.

Invaders long ago sought to get a force across a bridge to its head—to protect the bridge from destruction while additional troops crossed.

The securing of the "bridgehead" gave the troops a foothold across the river.

The Allen-Scott Report

People stay home

Paul Scott

WASHINGTON — Members of congress are bluntly advising constituents to stay away from Washington during the impending "poor people's march."

The legislators are warning of the possibility of a number of dangers—outbreaks of riots and violence, incendiary fires, which have continued to plague the capital since last month's costly disturbances following the slaying of Dr. Martin Luther King, and the spread of disease.

The extraordinary development that members of Congress are telling their home folks not to come to Washington was revealed by Senator Karl Mundt, S.D., a ranking Republican on the powerful Appropriations and Foreign Relations Committees. He also disclosed that he is urging colleagues to do the same "because I fear we are headed for very serious trouble."

"I have deemed it necessary, for the first time in my 30 years in Congress," Mundt said, "to tell the people of my state that if they have business in Washington, they should cancel it if possible. Also, if they must come, they should leave their wives and families at home, because until this so-called march is completed, visitors cannot feel safe in our capital city."

President Johnson should make a personal appeal to the march leaders to drop their plans, Mundt declared, in the interest of both their professed cause and the security of the people of Washington. This view was echoed by Sen. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., who contended the march will do more harm than good.

"People have a right to petition," he said, "but they also have a right to do it in an orderly manner. When 10,000, 20,000, 30,000 or 100,000 people mass in one place to petition, it can hardly be called a petition. That is a demand. It is a demand that we bow our neck to the power represented by those people."

"I do not propose to do that. For one thing, we must above all have law and order. The people who are coming here, no matter how well intentioned, are doing themselves a great disservice. I can listen to four or five people in my office, but I cannot listen to a crowd of ten or more thousand. And the same goes for other members of Congress."

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., cited testimony before the Senate Permanent Investigating Subcommittee that marchers will be armed.

This admission came from Attorney General

Ramsey Clark, who was questioned on the matter as follows:

"Do you think that some of the people coming here will have guns?"

Clark: "There will be people coming in with guns. There will be people already here who have guns. We have too many guns in this nation. That's one of the great difficulties. We urgently need to move effectively after them."

Well known nicknames

A characteristic of torrid political campaigns is the personalization of the rivals. This year's furious presidential race is no exception. It has produced quite a crop of personalization in the form of graphic nicknames of the various leaders.

Authorized chiefly by newsmen—traditionally iconoclasts—following are examples:

President Johnson—"Cornball."
Vice President Humphrey—"The Hump."
Sen. Robert Kennedy—"The Mob."
Sen. McCarthy—"Mac the Knife."
Richard Nixon—"The new, new, new Nixon."

Gov. Rockefeller—"Lover Boy."
Gov. Romney—"Brainwash."
Senator Percy—"The Huckster."
Ex-Governor Wallace—"Alabama Goober."

Attorney General Clark—"Bull Butter-fly."

Politics

Sen. George Aiken, Vt., 75, who would become chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee if the Republicans capture control of the next Senate, will run for re-election. Vigorous and active, the widely popular New Englander says, "It doesn't matter how old you are as long as you don't act it. Some people are old at 30. Others are young at 80."

An unpublishized multi-millionaire long-time supporter of Vice President Humphrey is Dwayne Andreas, Minneapolis, head of one of the biggest grain concerns in the country. Andreas has been a close friend and backer of Humphrey since he was mayor of Minneapolis. Carefully avoiding the limelight, Andreas is actively lining up influential business support for Humphrey.

Former Postmaster General Lawrence O'Brien will shortly take a business job. He will still continue working for Sen. Robert Kennedy, but only part-time.

'Don't quote me'

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The best political sources, and the poorest prognosticators, are the reporters of the capital. They are the graying men in the West Wing of the Capitol, the scotch nurses at the National Press Club bar, and the public relations slaves of the government. They know everything about everybody, and therefore find it impossible to predict anything with accuracy.

These are the daily historians; the instant images; the jaded jockeys of the journals. They listen to as many rumors as there are leaves on an old maple. Some of them flip upside down as easily in a breeze. At dinner, the men talk, at first hesitantly, then boldly. What they have to say, as opposed to what they write, is an admixture of fact, rumor, confidential leaks of information, and bias.

After a week of chatting with confreres, I am left with these impressions:

At Kennedy headquarters, 200 L Street Northwest, Jack Kennedy's Irish mafia has broken up. Kenneth O'Donnell, the vengeful Lord High Executioner, does not speak to Lawrence O'Brien. Larry's sin was in eating at the table of the arch-enemy, L.B.J. Both men now work for Bobby, but Bobby isn't Jack.

Both men have been outflanked by young kids who write the speeches, pour out the political commercials, and research the issues. Ted Sorensen, who helped Jack write "Profiles in Courage" and who polished some of the phrases that now adorn the chief's grave, has been replaced by Fred Dutton, a former State Department man.

Pierre Salinger is in an office, but he can't buck the kids. A lot of the final editing is done by Henry Greenfield, 24, who plays a guitar. Mrs. Rose Kennedy's denial that her son Bobby is ruthless raised a lot of eyebrows here because to deny is to reaffirm.

The majority of political reporters are certain that Hubert H. Humphrey is the man to beat; anyone who can defeat him is president; if no one can, he is. Two weeks ago, he set himself back by proclaiming himself "a soul brother." The term is scrawled on Negro shop windows to keep looters away.

The reporters like Nixon for the same reason that they like Humphrey: both are professionals—which is to say competent and unhypheral. They refer to Rockefeller as his own enemy, a good swimmer afraid of the water. And yet, if it is true that Kennedy spent $800,000 on the Indiana primary alone, America may have reached a stage where the throne is available only to millionaires.

The professional thinkers began forming political cadres for Lyndon Johnson after the new year. His speech of March 31st, renouncing another term as President, has left them melancholy and brooding. No word is out from on high to rally around Hubie, but they have because there is no other place to go. Even the Southern Democrats are uttering polite hoorays for Humphrey, a former member of the Americans for Democratic Action.

Eugene McCarthy, they say, holds a hammer. They think he cannot play the lead role in the autumn, but he may be able to divert his following to Kennedy or Humphrey as the balance of power. The only person who pays any attention to George Wallace of Alabama is a Republican Governor, Claude Kirk of Florida. He pops on and off television programs, puffing a pipe and acting mysterious.

The reporters feel that L.B.J., on the way out, has one more surprise in store. If Kennedy goes to Chicago with a preponderance of votes, the president may use his influence with the party—which is considerable—to make a ringing speech denouncing Kennedy as the man who would divide the party, and point to Humphrey as the only one who could unite it.

He can afford the parting shot before returning to the ranch because Kennedy has been merciless and contemptuous in his regard for Johnson. The long knives are in the hands of Democrats, aimed at each other.

Only one thing all the reporters agreed on. "For God's sake," they said, "don't quote me." I won't...

Year-round search

Every year a medical columnist is bombarded with letters, writing material and publicity releases about a special month of the year called "The Diabetic Month." A flurry of excitement runs through the press because of an artificial build-up of interest and enthusiasm about the disease and then all of it simmers down to the standard pattern of complacency and even neglect.

There is no diabetes month or week or year. There must be a constant awareness of good health all throughout the year with special emphasis on those diseases which must be uncovered early and brought out into the open.

A few basic principles about diabetes must be known and respected if the lives of those who have it are to be prolonged and kept in a constant state of good health.

It is accepted that there is a hereditary tendency towards diabetes. If one or more parents has had the disease there is a greater chance of acquiring this disorder sometime during one's life. This does not mean that healthy people must go through life constantly aware that a threat hangs over them. Rather, it means that they should be on a closer lookout for the possibility of its occurrence.

Diabetes is one of the few diseases that can be easily diagnosed and kept under control especially when recognized early.

Specialists in the field of diabetes speak about a group of people called the pre-diabetics. These may be the ones with a family history of the disease or the children of parents who may have had the condition. The pre-diabetic can be revealed by studies of the blood even in the absence of sugar in the urine or symptoms of the disorder.

The only answer for the undiscovered diabetic is a regular health examination. There is no short cut to avoid it. Those who follow the teachings of the American Diabetic Association

Ann Landers

No pay, no work

Dear Ann Landers: The person who wrote that millions of American housewives are largely responsible for the shortage of domestic help hit the nail squarely on the head. I have done housework for 20 years and I'd like to add a few words.

It's not only the ridiculous wages women pay household help, it's what they expect in the way of services. Some women who hire housekeepers don't know that mowing grass, raking leaves, washing the car, putting on and removing screens, shoveling snow, nursing care, shortening hems and sleeves are not housework. Neither is chauffeuring kids, repairing plumbing and shampooing the dog.

What some women expect a maid to do is unbelievable, but that's not the worst of it. The way they treat domestic help is nothing short of insulting.

I worked in a place where the woman of the house complained so bitterly about the cost of food I felt guilty every time I ate a mouthful. Madame used to put notes on things in the icebox, such as "Leave this salami alone, Irma, it's for lunch tomorrow." That same night they'd have three couples in and drink up $30 worth of Scotch.

So please tell your vast reading audience that if they are having a hard time finding domestic help, it's largely because they didn't treat help right when they had it. I know because I quit housework seven years ago and I'd starve before I'd go back to it.

Dear LL: I received a mountain of mail from former housekeepers who said the same thing. You said it best, thanks for writing. If there's another side to this story, I'd like to hear it.

Dear Ann Landers: I was married last year to a boy I grew up with. He was very set in his ways but I was sure I could live with his stubbornness. I do love him, but I need some advice on a serious problem.

My grandmother made her home with us when Grandpa died. I was 11 at the time and grandma was just wonderful to us kids.

Now that I am married and have a little bungalow of my own I have invited Grandma to come visit us for a week. She lives 200 miles away. We have a lovely guest bedroom and adjoining bath and she wouldn't be in the way at all.

My husband told me yesterday he can't stand old people and if Grandma accepts the invitation he is going fishing with his buddies and it will be considered his summer vacation. This means the vacation we planned together is off.

When I told him I thought his attitude was disgraceful he said, "Everyone has a pet hate and old people happen to be

The exhibit was held from May 4 to May 17. She was the only person from the Stroudsburg area who participated.

Mrs. Horne is a member of an international known family of artists. Erma Bombeck

Forget about book

My publishers have suggested I say something in the column about my book. What can I say? It's clean. It costs $3.95. And when I get a minute I'll read it.

Since last October, I have travelled 12,000 miles to 34 cities, done 16 radio spots and 19 television shows. In nearly every city I visit I note a little housewife standing on the fringe of the back department. She is hesitant at first, then she inches closer and pulls out a manuscript bigger than a bread box and says, "I've been working on this book and wonder . . ."

My advice is simple. "Forget it. Rather you should put 16 phones in your utility room or run numbers. Don't write a book." Here are a few myths I am about to explode:

"Aren't autographing parties exciting?" Only when there are people. At one department store near Cleveland, I directed three people to the men's room, one crying child to the service desk, autographed one Betty Crocker cookbook and was approached by a young couple who wanted to buy the desk out from under me.

Lost readers "Is it fun to do radio shows?" This is hardly the word. The talk shows, especially, unearth some interesting questions. When asked by one caller in Boston, "What do you think of women's softball teams?" and I answered, "I hardly think of them at all." I succeeded in alienating thousands of women's softball players from reading the column again.

"Aren't your children proud of their mother?" What mother: They think I'm the Avon Lady. The nine-year-old even suggested the other day, "Daddy told us you were much taller than this."

"Isn't it a blast being recognized in public?" It depends. One man at a cocktail party in Detroit swaggered up and said, "I know you. You're my favorite columnist." (I tried to look humble and kicked the rug with my toe.) He summoned his wife to my side and said, "Margaret, I want you to meet Bob Considine."

"Getting away from the kids and staying in a hotel must be relaxing to a housewife?" Not really. Having seen "Psycho" twice, I have cut out bathing altogether.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

The Pocono People's College apparently had the right idea, except they were about 45 years ahead of its time. My own recollections of that noble experiment are very hazy, consisting mainly of the smell of new cut logs and a bewildering variety of splints, adhesive tape and bandages.

It was mid-winter and I was with my doctor mother who had been called to treat a toboggan-load of casualties at the college after they'd collided with a tree. Much more vivid are my memories of the trip itself.

We had to leave the car at Henryville House and take a hired sleigh to reach the college high on the hill on the Hunter estate. I'd taken for granted that Mother was a doctor and could drive one of the first cars (didn't everybody's?) but I was mightily impressed that she could drive a horse, with bells on the harness and a tippy cutter behind.

However, the college itself was quite an innovation, I figured out later. Its students needed no high school diploma, just a desire for learning and its curriculum had no set courses, no grades, granted no degrees.

There were no prescribed ways to dress, to wear their hair, or spend their time except their own inclinations and interests.

I may be wrong but it sounds like a perfect definition of the kind of university that students are rioting all over the place to achieve today. Pocono People's College may well have been the prototype of the university of the future.

Surprise for mother on Mother's Day

EAST STROUDSBURG — Mrs. Hazel Melvin was surprised on Mother's Day when all her children and grandchildren came at the same time. She received many gifts, cards and flowers.

Present were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Detrick and sons, Larry and Jackie; Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Staples and children, Debbie, Julie and Jerry; of East Stroudsburg; Mr. and Mrs. Norman Warner and children, Lisa, Cindy and Eddie, East Stroudsburg; Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Meno and children, David and Mark, East Stroudsburg; Mr. and Mrs. Donald Lee and son, Brian, East Stroudsburg; Halsey Melvin, Sr., Edward Melvin and Halsey Melvin Jr., Stroudsburg. Mrs. Jack Detrick served cake and coffee.

Hadassah donors celebrate

STROUDSBURG — Members of the Stroudsburg branch of Hadassah relaxed at their "donor dinner" marking the conclusion of a successful fund campaign.

At the dinner arranged by Mrs. Lawrence Green and Mrs. Al Goldstein, Mrs. Harry Heller, president, said that the real reason for celebration was the fact that the donor dollars were already at work in Israel, in Hadassah hospital and health centers, among Young Aliyah, and in agricultural projects.

Mrs. Jack Bernbaum gave the invocation. Mrs. Richard Dettleback, chairman of the Israeli-Wyckoff Fashion Shows to be held Tuesday afternoon and evening, June 5, at the Fernwood, called attention to the deadline for luncheon or dinner reservations which is May 27.

The entertainment featured an original program "Music and Millinery" by Sally Ferrebee, with Robert Currier as her accompanist.

Mrs. Ferrebee combined modeling new hats with the songs associated with the period from which they had been adapted, together with vignettes of women whose hats had become their trademark.

One of her own feathered creations inspired a poem "That Hat"; a turban recalled a song from "The King and I"; a hat with streamers, "Can't Help Loving That Man of Mine" from Showboat; a flowered hat "It's May."

Another hat inspired original lyrics to "What A Fool Am I" a cowboy hat "You Can't Get a Man With a Gun"; a Gainsborough hat, a Maurice Chavalier version of "You Do Something to Me" ending with a red, white and blue hat and "It's a Great Country".

Mrs. Ferrebee who had presented the program for the first time for the Petroleum Dealers of Pennsylvania Convention at Tamiment this week received an ovation from Hadassah for the presentation.

Walter-Hanes May wedding announced

CLINTON, N.Y. — Miss Charlene Hanes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold B. Hanes of Paris Hill Road, Clinton, N.Y., became the bride of Manfred Walter, of Tannersville, on Saturday, May 11, at 2 p.m. at the First Methodist Church of New Hartford, N.Y.

Mr. Walter, a reporter for the Pocono Record, Stroudsburg, is the son of Mrs. Wilma Walter of 11 Baker St., Oneonta, N.Y.

Rev. James N. Pawley performed the ceremony before an altar decorated with a white floral centerpiece. The church was decorated with gladiolas and chrysanthemums. Musical background included "Arioso" by Bach as a processional and Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" as a recessional.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a cocktail-length gown of white chrysanthemum-patterned lace over romance blue satin, fashioned with a fitted front bodice, softly draped skirt and a full cage back. The neckline had a set-in collar of blue satin repeated in the blue satin bow at the empire waistline. She wore a satin-blue pillbox with a small bow at the back and bouffant veil. She carried a swing bouquet of white stephanotis, chrysanthemums and carnations.

Her sister, Lee Ann Hanes of Clinton, N.Y., was her maid of honor. She wore a cocktail length dress of pink organdy, a pink whimsy with bows, and carried a swing bouquet of white carnations, pink chrysanthemums and sweetheart roses.

Norbert Walter of Scotrun was his brother's best man. Ushers were David Hanes, brother of the bride, of Clinton, and Rick Methot of Stroudsburg.

A reception for about 50 guests was held at the church.

For their wedding trip to New York City, the bride wore a pink and blue flowered dress with a full skirt.

They are making their home in Tannersville.

The bride was a graduate of Clinton Central High School in 1965 and was employed by Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., Medicare division. Her husband was graduated from Delhi Agricultural and Technical College in 1961.

The Pocono Record

The Stroudsburgs, Pa. — Mon., May 20, 1968 Dial 421-3000

Area drivers pay $610,000 just riding around in cars

STROUDSBURG — For car owners in Monroe County, how expensive a proposition has the nation's 41,000-mile road building program become?

How much are they forking up annually toward the cost of construction through taxes on gasoline, tires and the like?

Based upon data from the Bureau of Public Roads, it is estimated that they turned in approximately $610,000 during the past year.

"This is exclusive of the auto-use taxes collected from them by the state."

The money went into the Highway Trust Fund, which pays the government's share of the road construction — 80 percent. The remaining 10 percent is provided by the states.

A second look is being taken just now at the status of the interstate system following a report by Alan S. Boyd, Secretary of Transportation, to the effect that the cost of the network has risen 20 percent, or $9 billion, over the estimate made in 1965. In the past year alone, the jump was 5 percent.

For the average Monroe County car owner, who clocks 10,000 annually and gets about 14 miles to the gallon, the cost last year was a little over $30. For the 15,000-mile driver it was $45.

For the number of cars in use locally, it added up to $810,000 for the year.

According to Federal Highway Administrator Lowell K. Bridwell, the main reasons for the increased cost were "improvements to the highway system and extensive upgrading of safety standards."

Among the safety features being added are better guard rails and wider bridges, he said. Because of the zooming costs and, the slowdown in construction that was ordered by the Administration to reduce domestic spending, the target date for completion has now been set back. Instead of 1972 it is now 1975 at the earliest.

At that rate, Monroe County's car owners will be contributing $4,267,000 in excise taxes to the trust fund over the next seven years as their share of the remaining cost.

What they are promised in return is reduced travel time, fewer accidents and lower car operating costs.

Grange marks Rural Life

BRODHEADSVILLE — In observance of Rural Life Sunday members of the Mincola Grange of the West End visited and worshipped in the Salem United Church of Christ, in Gilbert.

The annual event is held with informal dedications in recognition to the good times and the good life of the rural community, Richard G. Seidof, master, said.

In addition, the congregation of the Christ Lutheran Church of Hamilton Square was shown the everyday wonders of nature in all forms during all seasons, by Robert Perkins, area agent for the National Park Service in Bushkill.

The event was also part of the Spring Family Night.

Rev. Emmons borrowed Wilson's suit

Tux famous, young student humble

By PETE GRADY
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — It was all very formal back then — black tie and tux. Princeton, 1911. No demonstrations but much debating. One member of an inter-hall debating team, Peter K. Emmons, didn't have a tux.

He finally had to borrow one from the former university president and then governor of New Jersey, Woodrow Wilson.

Emmons, fearing a case of mistaken identity, removed Wilson's name label from the inside breast pocket of the tux. Unlike Wilson, Emmons didn't become President of the United States; instead he followed in Wilson's father's footsteps.

Wilson's father, the Rev. Joseph Haggles Wilson, was a Presbyterian minister.

The Rev. Peter K. Emmons of 519 Thomas St., Stroudsburg, graduated from Princeton's Union Theological Seminary in 1915 and began his ministry in the Bridge Street Presbyterian Church, Catasauqua, Pa., in the fall of 1915.

What the American flag means to a member of a U.S. war veteran's group, the ministerial cloth meant to Rev. Emmons, and at a very tender, early age.

"I was literally brought up in Sunday School and church," Rev. Emmons said recently in the den of his Stroudsburg home which is lined with antiques, mementos and relics of his missionary days in Southeast Asia and India.

"On Sunday I went to five different church services. Sunday School, 9:30 a.m.; church, 10:30 a.m.; Sunday School, 2:30 p.m.; church, 3:30 p.m.; the Christian Endeavor, a young people's society, 6:30 p.m.," Rev. Emmons said.

While still at Princeton, Rev. Emmons took a girl from New Jersey State Normal School (Trouton State Teachers College) out for a canoe ride on neighboring Lake Carnegie. The girl's name was Helen West and they were married in May, 1915. Rev. and Mrs. Emmons celebrated their 53rd wedding anniversary Sunday.

They wanted to do missionary work in India but his wife was turned down for health reasons.

From 1916-1919 Rev. Emmons was pastor of the Stroudsburg Presbyterian Church. Rev. Emmons and Charles Keller, head cashier of the Stroudsburg National Bank, headed the local Liberty Bond Drive during the Second World War. He also taught Sunday School with Ernest Wyckoff.

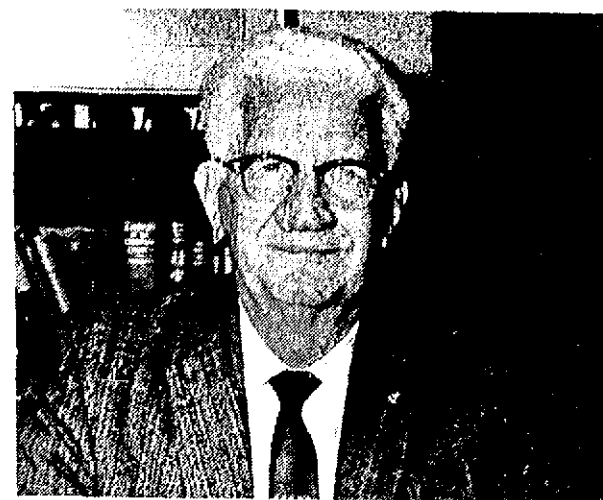

After the war, Rev. Emmons served the Presbytery in Trenton for eight years before moving to the Westminster Presbyterian Church, Scranton, where he remained as pastor for 32 years and was named Pastor Emeritus upon retirement.

While in Scranton he came to know James Linen and the late Henry Luce of Time Life, Inc. He also visited the Near East and India as a member of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church, 1918-1958. During the last eight years he was president of the Board of Foreign Missions.

Rev. Emmons knew Ecumenism from first hand (and what was then heart-breaking) experience back in a remote village in Northern India in 1938.

"I wanted to preach to the untouchables in this village where there was no school nor church," Rev. Emmons said. "I had to receive permission to speak to these people whom the Hindus refer to as the 'lowest of the low,' from the owner of the village, the Zimindar."

"In this village the women untouchables could not draw water from the local well until all the caste women had taken their turns at lowering and raising the bucket.

"I remember the Zimindar standing there in the middle of the dusty village after I had finished preaching. In a long robe, with arms folded, this Oxford graduate with an impeccable command of the King's English, said, 'Which kind of Christian are you? Anglican, Methodist or Presbyterian?' I felt like falling through the ground."

Later in the same year, while stopping off at Hanoi Airport which was just a barn and a weed-choked landing strip back then, Rev. Emmons was sipping a soft drink when an American from Shanghai came up to him and asked him to mail some letters out of the country for him.

"We began to talk," Rev. Emmons said, "and I found out that he was from Scranton. Actually, he was from Forrest City, a Scranton suburb, but when I said I was from Scranton he came right back and said, 'I'm from Scranton, too!'"

In another more poignant day, the second anniversary of the bombing of Hiroshima, Rev. Emmons, a member of a committee of five Americans who participated in a dedication of the Hiroshima Peace Pavilion, listened to Hiroshima's President of the City Council who told the group why they were chosen to dedicate the pavilion.

The council president said that about 100,000 Japanese had been killed on the day the bomb dropped on Hiroshima. If this huge loss in Japanese life meant saving several millions of Japanese and American soldiers that could have been killed in an American invasion of Japan's mainland, then the president offered his thanks to God that Hiroshima could make the sacrifice.

Rev. Emmons also enjoyed a half-hour interview with General Douglas MacArthur in Tokyo in 1947.

The general told Rev. Emmons that "75 per cent of my occupational forces think I'm nothing but a damn fool for trying to get Japan back on its feet and making friends out of our enemies."

Lutherans to discuss possible split

BUCK HILL FALLS, Pa. (AP) — Whether the Eastern Pennsylvania Synod of the Lutheran Church in America should be split in two is scheduled for a vote at the annual convention opening here today.

The Eastern Pennsylvania Synod, with 372,000 baptized members in 58 congregations, claims to be the largest in the LCA.

The synod last year directed its Committee on Structure and Function to formulate specific proposals for the division. The committee report is scheduled for Tuesday and the vote for Wednesday.

Delegates will vote on whether to ask the LCA, parent body of the synod, at its biannual convention next month in Atlanta, Ga., to create the separate synods.

The proposal for division involves not only geographical boundaries but also assets and projects the synods might conduct jointly.

It calls for one synod to be established in the five-county Philadelphia metropolitan area and another for 14 Northeast Pennsylvania counties in which are located the cities of Reading, Pottsville, Hazleton, Wilkes-Barre, Scranton, Allentown, Bethlehem and Easton.

Kowalyshyn on task force to study charter revision

HARRISBURG — Rep. Russell Kowalyshyn, Northampton, has been appointed to the Joint State Task Force committee studying the constitutional amendment on local government.

The Northampton-Monroe County Democrat was named to the committee by Rep. Herbert Fineman, House Democratic Floor Leader. Kowalyshyn is one of 16 members who will serve on the special committee.

The committee was one of four made necessary because the recent Constitutional Convention recommended changes in Pennsylvania's fundamental document and the electorate voted to accept them in April.

The four areas are taxation and finance, apportionment, local government and judiciary. "Past experience has shown that Rep. Kowalyshyn is one of our most knowledgeable members in the field of local government," Fineman said. "I am certain that he will represent both his county and his party well on this important committee assignment."

The constitutional amendment provided for home rule for all units of local government, optional forms of government, uniform procedures for merger, consolidation and boundary changes, intergovernmental cooperation and area government.

The General Assembly is charged with enacting laws to carry out the changes.

STROUDSBURG — Two East Stroudsburg State College men are in Monroe County Jail in default of $2,000 bail each.

The men, Stephen Mayoryk Jr. of 1396 Railroad St., Northampton, and Thomas James Sukes of Hankins, N.Y., were apprehended by East Stroudsburg Police inside the East Stroudsburg Beverage Co. Saturday morning.

Police said they were making a routine check of local businesses when they spotted a car parked nearby.

They examined the beer distributor building and found a lock on a door forced open. They went inside and saw a half of beer near the door. The beer had been removed from the cooler inside the plant.

The two college men were apprehended hiding behind some beer cases.

The men were taken before East Stroudsburg Justice of the Peace Harold D. Larison Sr.

Palmer cards 69; Wall 72 in Pocono Manor exhibition

By TED WISMER
Record Sports Editor

POCONO MANOR — Arnold Palmer showed Saturday that he is ready to reclaim the professional tour as he carded a three-under par 69.

It was billed as an exhibition match, between Palmer and Andy Olexovitch of Dunmore and Art Wall and Jack Cuttle for the benefit of the Scranton Junior Women's Club.

Wall, who started out with a birdie four on the first hole, came in with an even par while Olexovitch "settled" for a 75 and Cuttle, pro at the Manor for the last 41 years, a 78.

Palmer, who admitted playing about four practice rounds this week, had four birdies on the front side but picked up a double bogey and a bogey.

Wall, who holds the Manor record of 63, won the first two holes. Wall sank a 15-foot putt for a bird on the first hole and won the second with a bogey. Both Palmer and Olexovitch had troubles with trees on the 2nd. Arnie hooked his tee shot into the left woods and his second shot hit another tree and still left him shy of the fairway.

All four golfers hit the green on the 191-yard third hole with Cuttle only about 15 feet away.

But Palmer put the pressure on with a 30-foot down hiller for the bird. Cuttle's attempt for the birdie was about six inches short.

The match became all even on the fourth as both Palmer and Olexovitch almost drove the 305 yard hole while Wall hit into the right rough and had an unplayable lie.

Palmer, Wall and Cuttle all picked up birdies on the 300-yard fifth hole as again Palmer was only about 10 yards shy of the green.

On the sixth hole Palmer hit his second shot about two feet past the pin and got an easy bird to give his team a one-hole advantage.

Wall, Cuttle and Olexovitch each got pars on the 77-yard 7th while Palmer had to settle for a bogey. His tee shot hit short of the green and rolled back towards the ditch. He moved his second shot only about three feet but put his third shot six inches from the cup.

The eighth was halved with pars but Palmer got another bird on nine to give his team a two-up advantage.

Olexovitch finally did something for his team by dropping a 15-foot putt for a bird on the 10th.

Cuttle, who amazed the crowd with his accuracy off the tee, matched that bird on the 13th to keep his team two down.

But Arnie and Andy then birdied the next three holes to put the match away.

Tee shots — Palmer never arrived at the pro shop until 12:30 and a half-hour later appeared on the practice tee. Just as he stepped on the tee the first drops of rain fell.

Palmer and Wall were scheduled to give a clinic but due to the threatening weather decided to get the match started. Wall was on the practice tee at 10:30 but departed quickly after a quick shower and didn't appear again until 1:15. Both Palmer and Wall were amiable and personable as they signed autographs as they walked up to their next shot.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Eagles will hold preseason training this year at Albright College, Reading, coach and general manager Joe Kuharich said Saturday.

The Eagles had trained at Hershey since 1951 but ended that agreement this year. Eagle officials were impressed with the facilities at East Stroudsburg State and Albright but chose the latter site.

Kuharich said rookies will report July 14 and veterans July 21.

Chisox sweep four-game set from A's

CHICAGO (AP) — Pitcher Tommy John's three-run homer in the first game and a five-run uprising in the fifth inning of the nightcap sent the surging Chicago White Sox to 6-2 and 7-3 victories over the Oakland Athletics Sunday.

The White Sox, who opened the season with a 10-game losing streak, swept the four-game set from the A's and have now won 12 of their last 16.

John, nicknamed for a pair of unearned runs in the third inning, smashed his homer off Jim "Catfish" Hunter in the fourth inning to wipe out a 2-1 Oakland lead.

John boosted his record to 4-0 while Hunter, who pitched a perfect game against Minnesota less than two weeks ago, is now 4-3.

Chicago took a 1-0 lead in the first inning of the second game on a double by Aparicio, a punt single by Ken Berry and Tommy Davis' sacrifice fly.

Aparicio opened the big fifth by getting hit by a pitch. Berry sacrificed and Davis singled Aparicio home. Before the A's could get another man out, Manager Eddie Stanky sent in three pinch runners, all of whom scored, and pinch batter Wayne Causey, who delivered a two-run single.

Phillies post third straight over Cards

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Pinch hitter Gary Sutherland's two-run double with two out in the ninth inning carried the Philadelphia Phillies past St. Louis 4-3 Sunday for their third straight victory over the Cardinals.

After the Cardinals scored twice in the top of the ninth for a 3-2 lead, reliever Joe Hoerner walked pinch hitter Richardo Joseph and Roberto Pena with one out in the Phils' half.

Hal Gilson replaced Hoerner and fanned Mike Ryan for the second out. But Sutherland, batting for pitcher Dick Farrell, laced a double off the left field wall, scoring Joseph and Pena.

Billy Casper breezes to victory in Colonial

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Imperturbable Billy Casper stormed past floundering Gary Player Sunday and breezed to the championship of the $125,000 Colonial National Invitation Golf Tournament.

Casper fired a two-under-par 68 for a 72-hole total of 275 and a five-shot victory over Gene Littler.

Littler closed with a 68 also for 280 and $15,000.

Casper strung together rounds of 68-71-68-68 in winning his third PGA title of the year and boosting his money winnings $25,000 to $103,868.

That supplanted Tom Weiskopf as the leader and marked the first time in history that a golfer has gone over $100,000 this early in the year.

Casper started the final round in a deadlock with Player, the pride of South Africa, at 207. That was three under par for three rounds over the 7,600-yard Colonial course.

Tommy Aaron and Earl Stewart Jr. were four strokes back at 211 and Littler was at 212.

Aaron made a spirited bid for the lead at one point but bogeys at three of the final five holes blew him out of contention. He took third at 281 and picked up $9,375 with his closing par 70.

Player skyrocketed to a 75 and wound up in a fourth-place tie with Lee Trevino, a 71 shooter.

They received $5,812 each. Stewart ended with a 74 for 285 and was tied there with Julius Boros, 71, and Harold Henning, 71. One stroke back were Tommy Bolt and Dudley Wysong, both firing 71s in the finale. George Knudson shot a 70 and stood alone at 287, one stroke ahead of masters champion Bob Goalby. He shot a 71 also.

A very happy Billy Casper accepts the winners trophy from Judge Charles Murray, (R) Pres. of the Colonial C.C., after he won the Colonial National Invitation Golf Tournament Sunday in Fort Worth with a five-under-par 275. Casper is the first golf pro to ever win $100,000 this early in the season. (UPI Telephoto)

Yanks snap Bosox skein; Tresh hero

BOSTON (AP) — Tom Tresh turned from Saturday night's goal to Sunday's hero, driving in four runs in the first two innings with a single and a bases loaded double as the New York Yankees crushed Boston 11-3 and snapped the Red Sox' seven-game winning streak.

Tresh, whose three errors in one inning at shortstop Sunday night practically handed the Red Sox a 4-0 victory, singled in a run to cap a four run first inning Sunday.

The converted outfielder, who entered the game hitting only .149, lined a three-run double down the right field line in the second, climaxing another four-

Third base an exile

To give you an idea of where third base fits into the baseball scheme of things, only a handful of close students of the game can tell you who the third baseman was in the Tinker-to-Evans-to-Chance infield.

It's not a position, it's an exile. Hitler may be alive and playing third base. Judge Crater didn't disappear, he became a third baseman.

He's more of a recluse than the Lost Dutchman. Howard Hughes is a social butterfly compared to a third baseman. If the game was an opera, he'd be a spear carrier.

You tell a third baseman by the lumps on his chest and the gaps in his teeth. He's only 90 feet away from a bat that will hit a ball at him at 120 m.p.h. Society forces them to blindfold most people staring down a muzzel like that.

The only thing they don't put on third base is a leftshander. This is because you only get 3.5 seconds to throw a guy out at first, and it would take a leftshander that long to get turned around. The name of the vaudeville routine should really be "Who's on Third?"

A third baseman is usually a guy not nifty enough to make the pivot on second, not enough range to play shortstop, not burly enough to play first. But, it's a hitting position. Your glove can guarantee you a job at second or short.

A third baseman can play in boxing gloves if he can hit. The ball comes down there too fast for you to do anything fancy with it anyway. Most third basemen look on a ground ball as if they're trying to Christmas-wrap it.

Now that Richie Allen needs a 6-cent stamp to get the ball to first base in anything under a day, the best third basemen in the National League, if not baseball, is Ronald R. Santo, the only pizza cook in the country who knows enough to come in on a bunt.

Only a corporal's guard of third basemen have made the Hall of Fame. "Pie" Traynor, "Home Run" Baker, John McGraw, and a guy named Jimmy Collins. Third basemen get their names in baseball legend only when they chase the winning run across the plate in a pennant game, or when a ball hits a pebble and bounces over one's head to decide a World Series.

In 17 seasons, Pie Traynor got 2,416 hits. In eight seasons, Ron Santo had made 1,314 hits. He hits more home runs in a month than "Home Run" Baker tried to hit in a season. He has already hit 204 home runs and he is only 28 years old. He has hit 30 or more homers four seasons in a row. He regularly leads the club in everything but whirlpool baths.

In 1966, in the midst of a 28-game hitting streak, Santo stepped into an ear-early fastball from Jack Fisher of the Mets and, when they carried him off, they had to hold his left cheekbone on. The eye had all but disappeared. They had to send out for thread twice and the doctor wasn't sure he couldn't save Ron a lot of trouble later by putting the glass eye in then and there.

"When can I play ball again?" demanded the impatient Santo. The doctor sighed. At the time he was thinking that maybe the only thing Santo would be able to do at a ball game ever again was hear it.

Santo was back busting up pitches in seven days.

His glove isn't just a prop, either. In 1966, he broke a record for assists by a third baseman that had stood since the days when the ball was just a hemstitched beanbag. Then last year, he even broke that one.

It is clearly time the third baseman get equal billing on the Cubs with the manager, the chewing gum, and the wind off Lake Michigan—so that, if he puts his picture on his pizzas, people won't think it's Chef Milani.

Williams ties game record
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Chicago Cubs left fielder Billy Williams equalled the major league record for most consecutive games by an outfielder Sunday when he appeared in both ends of a doubleheader against the San Francisco Giants.

Williams has played in 694 straight games since the 1963 season, tying a mark set by former Phillies' center fielder Richie Ashburn.

NEW YORK (AP) — Atlanta's Ron Reed fired a two-hitter in the first game, beating the New York Mets 3-2, and then Dick Kelley completed the sweep of the Sunday doubleheader with a 2-0 victory in the nightcap.

Kelley allowed eight hits and outduelled Al Jackson of the Mets, who was working on a three-hitter until the eighth inning.

Clete Boyer opened the eighth with a double and then Tommie Aaron snapped the scoreless tie with a triple to right center field. Woody Woodward's single brought Aaron across.

Reed, won his fourth straight in the opener when the Braves rallied for two runs in the eighth inning against Nolan Ryan.

Forward Pass has chance to win racing's Triple Crown

BALTIMORE (MD) — Forward Pass won the Preakness Saturday, and the chemist said Sunday that is exactly what happened.

Dr. John A. Herculeon, chief chemist for the Maryland Racing Commission, reported that the urinalysis of the first three finishers were negative.

It was a positive urinalysis—one that revealed a trace of an illegal medication—that led to the disqualification of Dancer's Image as winner of the Kentucky Derby.

Despite his disqualification, Dancer's Image underwent a urinalysis, as did Forward Pass and Out of the Way.

The State Racing Commission ruled 10 days ago that the first three finishers would be tested. Nodouble, who came under the wire fourth but was upped to third place after Dancer's Image was set down, was not tested.

The stewards at Pimlico ruled that Dancer's Image impeded the progress of Martins Jig during the stretch run and disqualified him from third place to eighth in the field of 10.

However, they held jockey Bobby Ussery blameless, ruling he could not control Peter Fuller's hard-luck colt.

Willie McKeever was not as fortunate. The apprentice rider of Nodouble stood up in the irons with a sixteenth Opening lead—four of spades.

One of the biggest swings during the annual world championship staged in Miami Beach last year occurred in this deal in the match between Thailand, representing the Far East, and the North American team.

At the first table, with Norman Kay and Edgar Kaplan North-South for the American team, the bidding went as shown.

It was difficult for either side to gauge exactly how far to go in the highly competitive auction, and Kaplan quite properly, contracted for six diamonds after Kay had passed West's five spade bid. (Five spades would have gone down one only because the East-West diamonds were divided 1-1.)

Kaplan was lucky in the play and wound up making the slam for a score of 1,540 points. West led a spade which Kaplan ruffed. After drawing trumps, declarer forced out the ace of hearts and easily made the rest by discarding two clubs on dummy's hearts.

The bidding at the second table was likewise very competitive, and the Thailand South also arrived at six diamonds doubled. With Sammy Kehela East and Eric Murray West for the North American team the bidding went:

Realizing that a spade lead would prove ineffective on the bidding, Murray tried the queen of clubs. As a result, the unfortunate Thai declarer went down one and his team lost 1,740 points.

In retrospect, it would seem that the West player at the first table should also have led a club, but the 1,740 points he cost his team by failing to do so are surely out of proportion to the magnitude of the error.

$100 million project

PP&L erects new facility

DANVILLE — Ground was broken Friday for the $100 million Montour Steam Electric Station which Pennsylvania Power & Light Company will build on a 1,200-acre site at Strawberry Ridge, about seven miles northwest of Danville.

In place of the traditional shovel, a small explosive charge turned over the first earth at the site. Pushing the plunger to detonate the charge a half mile away were June Fester and Randy Gresh, chosen for the honor by fifth and sixth grade pupils at the DeLong Memorial School, Washingtonville. They were guests at the public ceremony, along with their classmates and a number of local government officials, area residents and news media personnel.

The explosive was set off on high ground which marked the exact center of the location for the plant's main building. The first generating unit is scheduled to go into service late in 1971, adding 765,000 kilowatts of electric power to the Company's bulk supply system.

The groundbreaking was preceded by a luncheon program held at the Holiday Inn along Interstate 80 at Route 54, five miles south of the plant site. About 55 persons attended.

Various facets of the plant construction and operation were described by three PP&L officials: Willard U. Baum, vice president of system power and engineering; Charles E. Pappas, vice president, Susquehanna Division; and Robert C. Zundel, manager-real estate.

In brief, they pointed out that:

During the peak of construction, 700 persons will be employed on the site. Over the three and half year construction period, payrolls will total $18 million. When the first unit goes into service, a permanent force of 80 will be employed at an annual payroll of about $660,000.

The $100 million investment in Montour plant represents about one-fifth of the $506 million which PP&L has earmarked for new and improved facilities in the five-year period through 1972. Total cost of the Montour project, including related transmission lines and facilities, will exceed $112 million.

Montour plant is being built to insure a plentiful and reliable supply of power needed to meet future growth in the northern tier counties of PP&L's service area and to maintain the low-cost electric service required for continued industrial development of the region.

The plant will consume about 275 tons of coal an hour—1.7 million tons a year—at capacity. The coal will be transported to the plant by 130-car unit trains carrying 13,000 tons per trip from a new Barnes & Tucker mine near Barnesboro in western Pennsylvania. The latest in loading and unloading equipment and fast, nonstop delivery schedules over the Penn Central Railroad will enable the unit train to make three round trips per week between mine and plant.

The company is installing a $2 million electrostatic precipitator designed to remove 99.5 per cent of the ash from flue gases leaving the 600-foot-high stack. Several other new approaches will be employed in the coal handling procedures to control dust.

Barrett Twp. Legion poppy sale May 25

CANADENSIS — The American Legion and the American Legion Auxiliary, Post 022 Canadensis, have officially designated May 25, American Legion Poppy Day, in Barrett Township.

W. Nevin Hess, Department of Pennsylvania Poppy Chairman, stated that this marks the 45th consecutive year that The American Legion and the American Legion Auxiliary Units have been engaged in the distribution of Poppies in Pennsylvania.

Every Poppy that has been distributed during this period of time has been assembled by hospitalized Disabled Veterans within the State of Pennsylvania, and that they have been reimbursed for their labor directly from the proceeds resulting from the distribution of Poppies.

In 1967, 800,000 Poppies were distributed in Pennsylvania and Veterans received $8,000.00 as their payment for assembling the Poppies. This money, said Chairman W. Nevin Hess, goes directly to the Veterans who assembled the Poppies.

Hess stated that the proceeds for the distribution of the Poppies are used for the service and relief funds of the Department of The American Legion and the local Post or Unit of The American Legion of the various cities in Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Marge Varvel is the Poppy Chairman for the American Legion Post 022 and auxiliary.

Draft opposition at Penn probed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A "complete and satisfactory answer" as to why University of Pennsylvania facilities have been used by a group opposed to the draft is being asked by Rep. Edwin Eshleman, R-Pa.

The Lancaster congressman, in a letter to Dr. Gaylord P. Harnwell, U. of P. President, said that unless an answer is received, he will urge that all state and federal funds to the university be withheld pending an investigation.

CAMP HILL — Pennsylvania Blue Shield is the largest of the 73 non-profit prepaid health care plans using the Blue Shield name in the United States on the basis of the number of persons served, it was announced today by Matthew K. Gale, president of the statewide plan.

The 1967 enrollment report of the National Association of Blue Shield Plans, just released, shows that Pennsylvania Blue Shield now serves over 6 million persons in the state, including 5 1/2 million Blue Shield members and another million persons whose health care financing is handled by Blue Shield under fiscal arrangements with government agencies.

When Pennsylvania Blue Shield processes claims for hospital inpatients under the state's Medical Assistance program after June 1, there will be a potential additional one million plus persons being served. The total number of Pennsylvanians served by Blue Shield then will be over seven million, or about 60 per cent of the state's population.

More than 57 million members now belong to the 73 Blue Shield Plans, with nearly 12 million additional persons being served under government programs administered by certain plans. The 73 plans paid nearly 1.3 billion dollars for professional care performed for members during 1967. Nearly 1 billion dollars more was paid under fiscal arrangements for government programs.

The record April total represented an increase of 62 per cent over the same month of 1967.

Revenue passenger miles — one passenger carried one mile flown during April totaled approximately 74,000,000, a 75 per cent increase over April 1967. During the first four months of 1968, revenue passenger miles flown totaled more than 247,500,000, up 59 per cent from 1967.

First quarter profits

NEW YORK (AP) — U.S. Steel, the nation's largest steelmaker, Tuesday reported first quarter profits of $50,750,832, or 94 cents a share, compared with $41,133,650, or 76 cents a share, for the first quarter of 1967.

Kodak splits stock

FLEMINGTON, N.J. (AP) — Shareholders of the Eastman Kodak Co. approved Tuesday a two-for-one stock split, effective May 1, as proposed by company directors earlier this month.

The company last split two-for-one in 1965. Shareholders also approved increasing the number of authorized shares from 100 million to 360 million.

Eastman Kodak was $155 a share before closing Tuesday. William S. Vaughn, chairman of the board, announced at the annual shareholders' meeting here, that Eastman Kodak International Capital Co. Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of Eastman Kodak, proposed to offer in early May $70 million of 20-year debentures which will be guaranteed by Eastman Kodak and convertible to Eastman Kodak common stock.

The offering will be made outside the United States through an international group of underwriters, headed by Morgan & Sie International S.A., Paris. Kodak International was formed recently to assist in financing Eastman Kodak, proposed to offer.

In accordance with a U.S. government mandatory program of restraint on direct foreign investment by U.S. corporations, Vaughn said it was anticipated that Kodak International will obtain the funds needed for such financing outside the United States.

The shareholders also approved the issuance of debt securities and guarantees of subsidiaries.

Record earnings

DENVER, Colo., Record sales and earnings for any first quarter in the company's history were reported at the annual meeting of International Telephone and Telegraph Corp.

Harold S. Geneen, chairman and president, told shareholders at the 48th annual meeting — the first held in Denver — that the record quarter was the 35th consecutive one in which sales, net income and per share earnings exceeded the similar period of the previous year.

He pointed out that sales and revenues increased from $766 million in 1969 to the present $2.7 billion — almost four times.

Measured from 1963 sales have increased from $1.4 billion to over $2.7 billion in 1967, nearly doubling in the last five years, he said.

He pointed out also that earnings have increased from $29 million in 1963 to over $119 million last year — four times as large. Measured from 1963 earnings increased from $52 million — or again doubling in the past five years, he said.

Fourth straight year

Less than two per cent of all life insurance salesmen qualify for the Round Table in any given year. Representing more than 20 nations and 300 life insurance companies, membership of the organization in 1968 totals 6,400.

Horn, as district agent of Northwestern Mutual, maintains a district agency office at 1918 Union Boulevard, Allentown. He is responsible for the four counties of Lehigh, Northampton, Monroe and Carbon. He resides at 200 W. Langhorne, Bethlehem, Pa.

Running through June 1, Wickes' 133 lumber and building supply centers from coast to coast are conducting a month-long celebration.

With the theme of "The Greatest Show On Earth," the main attraction of the "Circus of Values" will be Wickes' high quality merchandise, backed up by authentic props, employee costumes, free gifts and special reduced prices.

Your Horoscope

By Francis Drake

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Got a good idea? Jot it down for later perusal — when there's time for it. If a change should be made quickly, do not hesitate, but be sure you have facts and know-how.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Do not anticipate difficulties, but be prepared to forestall them. A good Venus influence encourages your finest efforts. Emphasize tolerance and congeniality.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Aspects suggest reviewing before saying something is "finished" or "cannot be done!" Maybe one small alteration would make it acceptable. Avoid guess work. Stress logic.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Careful procedure in minor details will prove tremendously helpful. Profit by past experience. Work, agreements, family interests need more than casual attention.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Restrain and contain feelings in a judicious manner. Do not be reluctant to knuckle down to different tasks. Avoid extremes.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — While some changes are taking place, the overall atmosphere is beneficently aspected. Begin helpful discussions, and stick with trying matters that still need care.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Some operations will run smoothly with little effort, others will take a bit of doing. Here is where your talents can shine. Emphasize your impartial, enlightened viewpoint.

October 24 to November 23 (Scorpio) — Your nimble wit and clearing your head of all but essential thoughts will put in an excellent position to judge more exactly, be ready for deliberate, concise action. Seek truths.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — Heartening in some areas, slower progress in others. Take things philosophically, and keep everything above-board. In all events, be prudent, careful of others' feelings.

December 22 to January (Capricorn) — A good day for a strong-minded you. Pick, choose with discretion but, in so doing, do NOT neglect little details.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — When you speak up, have the facts — and express them tactfully. When silence is called for, THEN — not later — is the time! But don't be silent when a word from you is due.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — Study propositions and the people behind them. Neither make agreements to quickly nor dally so long that you lose chances. Once decided on your course, however, back up your decision with sound action.

YOUR BORN TODAY: Governed by Venus, you are innately refined, friendly, fair-minded and artistic. You are gregarious, too, but tend to be unyielding at times. Harmony is necessary to the Taurean, so strive ever to keep it an underlying factor in all relationships. You have grace and dignity of demeanor; enjoy performances of singing, music and drama, wherein you can also lend your talents. Birthdate of: Honore de Balzac, Fr. novelist; Jean L. Agassiz, naturalist.

Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — Multi-millionaire Orin Lehman (the former governor's nephew) peeled off just one of those many millions as a so-long settlement to wife Jane . . . Ingrid Bergman's husband Lars Schmidt's losing his silk shirt with his $70,000 Paris play "Les Yeux Creves"; that's huge production money in Pardee . . . Now if only television's "Laugh-In" would just give back its "Heath Come, The Judge!" catch-phrase to venerable Negro comic Pigneat Markham, or hire him and put it back in his mouth.

We encountered a couple of un-credited lines hereabouts the other day that deserve sticking back on proper sources: such as Oscar Levant's long-ago line when he and wife June left a White House dinner: "Now I suppose we'll have to have them over"; and one full-page ad captioned, "I've been rich and I've been poor, and believe me, rich is better," without noting the bibulous sage who said it first — Joe E. Lewis . . . Also a television comedian named Marshall on Ed Sullivan who reminded the audience his jokes didn't get big laughs, "only intellectual nods," another Joe E. Lewis subtlety.

For years a small clip of well-paid nightlife larcenists-comics blatantly lifted stuttering Joe Frisco's finest jokes at the same time Joe didn't have what to eat, as they say on Broadway.

June Havoc's secret will out: a new play . . . One of the very-richest socialites bought her gem-designing boy friend a stylish gift — a town house; but the lad couldn't afford to renovate and put it up for sale; his aging patroness is pouting . . . Max Ribisen, Broadway's million-buck insurance-man-to-the-stars, ordered an artsy ad into the Sunday paper noting "all of us are invited guests on this planet and are here for a tour of inspection," etc., etc., ending with the assurance his office would provide "insurance protection to fill your needs during your wonderful lifelong tour" and Max sure got replies — from several asking Max to book their tours.

Broadway institution McGinnis' big refurbishing adds a new name to its downstairs room, henceforth "The Beef and Bay," plus its own elegant canopied entrance on 48th St. for another expensive addition, "McGinnis' Act '48" . . . It all started with clams and gnoshes out at Sheepshead Bay . . . Sandy Koufax is having problems as a television baseball-caster: "Too shy" to loosen up verbally; Tony Kubek is getting straight-A's for his easy NBC ball-talk.

Caught "The Leopard" film finally on television and what a woebegone disaster was committed to the Lampedusa novel by totempole-stolid Burt Lancaster; neither he nor the director understood either the Italian or aristocratic subtleties so necessary for this brilliant Sicilian tale . . . Come to think, we've never seen Lancaster in a part we believed . . . Being pushed as a Father's Day Gift — a little item called a Portable Executive Telephone, a truly portable phone all right — peddled at $2,160 (Bye!)

Mrs. Hubert Humphrey's pet hairdresser Victor Vito is counting on a Hubert victory: he's opening a salon in Washington . . . The Copacabana let him in but pronounced "The Graduate" star Dustin Hoffman's attire out of the running for a fashion prize.
